2. Who should attend the Pain Clinic?

The pain clinic is for individuals with chronic pain. Chronic pain is described as pain that has lasted for greater than 3 months. Due to this pain, patients may experience challenges in carrying out their activities of daily living. The Pain Management Program offers a comprehensive approach to help patients living with chronic pain. The program provides patients with a range of different tools and strategies to help improve their quality of life.

3. How can I get a referral to the Pain Clinic?

To receive care at the pain clinic, the clinic must receive a referral from a family doctor, nurse practitioner, or a doctor at a walk-in clinic/virtual health clinic. We do not accept self-referrals.

4. Why was my referral declined?

Not every patient's referral to the pain clinic is accepted. If your referral is not accepted, the Pain Clinic will notify the provider who referred you to the Pain Clinic. This provider will then follow up with you.

Island Health Pain Program Frequently Asked Questions (FAQs)

5. How do I get an appointment?

Once the Pain Clinic has received your referral, it will be reviewed by the pain team to determine if the Pain Clinic is the next best step for you. If the team determines that you should be seen by the Pain Clinic, they will review your case to identify how quickly you should be seen. You will be called by the Pain Clinic with the date and time of your appointment.

6. My family doctor retired/I don't have a family doctor, can I still come to the clinic?

If you do not have a primary care provider (family doctor or nurse practitioner), you can seek care at a walk-in-clinic or virtual health clinic. The doctors at these clinics can send your referral.

7. What services does the Pain Clinic offer?

- We aim to provide you with tools and resources to help you manage your pain and improve your quality of life and overall function. We provide assessments, self-management programs, medical treatments, and education. Please note, the clinic in Comox does not have pain physicians.
- Our doctors work with your primary care provider to make recommendations around medications. We do not prescribe medications.
- Each pain clinic offers an orientation to its pain program. The pain clinics also offer pain education and specialized classes, such as CBT therapy for sleep and insomnia, mindfulness, and movement classes.

8. Are there any restrictions related to accessing Pain Clinic services?

The pain clinic does not serve patients younger than 17 years of age. Patients must also reside within Island Health (Vancouver Island, Gulf and Discovery Islands, and the coastal area north of Powell River).

9. Are the Pain Clinics accepting new patients?

Yes, the Pain Clinic is accepting new patients.

10. How long will I have to wait for my first appointment?

Due to the high percentage of people with chronic pain, Island Health's pain clinics have a long wait list. Referrals received by primary care providers will be triaged into categories of urgency.

11. Will my first appointment be with a physician?

Not every patient will see a pain physician. The need to see a physician is made on a patient-by-patient basis. If the pain team decides that you should see a physician, you will be contacted with a date and time of your appointment.

12. Who is the pain team?

Each clinic has an interdisciplinary team. Pain Physicians work at the Victoria and Central Island Pain Programs. These physicians offer interventional pain care (e.g., injections). At these clinics, you may also be seen by non-physician team members, such as the pharmacist, physiotherapist, occupational therapist, or social worker. The Victoria Pain Clinic also has a psychiatrist and psychologist.

There is a small Pain Clinic located in the Comox Valley Nursing Centre. This team includes nursing, physiotherapy, and a social worker. There are no physician services offered at this clinic.

Section 2: General Pain and Pain Care Questions

1. Will my pain completely go away?

The goal of the pain program is to improve quality of life and function. This is achieved through working with our pain team, setting realistic and obtainable goals, and attending our educational classes. Patients rarely report that their pain has been eliminated after attending a pain management program. Instead, patients often report a reduction in pain intensity.

2. What processes does the Pain Clinic have for follow-up of its patients?

Your follow up care is dependent upon the pain team's assessment and your care plan. Your care plan could include seeing a physician, a member of the interdisciplinary team, or both.

3. How does the Pain Clinic team work with (my) other medical or social specialists/programs?

The pain team will refer you to other providers and programs, as needed. For example, you could be referred to other physicians, such as physiatry. We also refer patients when required to allied health professionals, such as social work or mental health case workers.

4. Who gets my results?

To better support your care, your results are shared with members of the pain team who are directly involved with your care. Your results are also shared with the provider who referred you to the pain program.

5. Do I have the right to request copies of any test/results from the Pain Clinic?

Yes. All patients have the right to request copies of all tests and results. We encourage all patients to sign up to Island Health MyHealth Portal. You can find out more about the MyHealth Portal, including how to sign up by visiting this website.

6. Will the Pain Clinic communicate with my provider (e.g., primary care provider or physician at walk-in clinic)?

There is ongoing 2-way communication between the provider who referred you to the Pain Program and the pain team.

7. Do I need another referral to the pain program if I haven't attended for a while?

If you have not been seen by the pain program for 1 year, your provider will need to send another referral. Additionally, if you are having pain in a new location, your provider will need to send a new referral for the new area that you are experiencing pain.

8. Will the Pain Clinic have access to my other medical records?

Within Island Health, the pain team has access to your electronic health records for the care provided to you by Island Health. Each year, all staff are required to complete confidential information management training.
